Providing In-Home &
Telehealth Services in
Queens, Nassau, and Suffolk
Counties

About Us

Founded in 2014, Visiting Counselors of New York (VCNY), offers in-home and telehealth counseling for older and disabled adults. VCNY provides in-home counseling throughout Long Island and telehealth services throughout New York State.

Our Mission

VCNY works to help people overcome their fears and concerns, cope with health conditions and limitations, and obtain their goals. For older clients, we are also committed to helping you stay in your community and maintain the greatest level of independence possible.

It is VCNY's hope that by bringing services to the individual and connecting people with quality, caring and confidential providers, more people will receive support and assistance.

Individual Counseling

Our in-home and telehealth counseling practitioners take a supportive and humanistic approach to providing services. Rather than do things the typical way, we've created a system designed around our clients' needs and take a client-centered approach. Our team of practitioners can assist individuals suffering from depression, anxiety, isolation, difficulty coping with loss or life transitions, as well as address the everyday concerns and difficulties. Additionally, we are able to assist individuals in addressing long-term planning needs, applying for various resources and entitlements, and provide linkage to appropriate community resources.

Eligibility Requirements

To qualify for VCNY's in-home services, individuals must be 55 and older. Individuals under 55 can qualify for services if they suffer from a physical disability or chronic medical condition that limits their ability to travel.
